- V. New Business
- VI. Committee Reports
 - a. Technology Committee – Windows 10 devices to be replaced through generous donors
Jeremy Barr – Through generous donors we were able to purchase 150 devices. We'll use these for our students to take their state assessments on, which is awesome.
 - b. Wellness Committee – no report
Jeremy Barr – January wellness activity is physical activity
 - c. Athletics Committee –Boys basketball underway
Jeremy Barr– Boys basketball has officially started. They are one week in. Fr. Dan Lorimer – We are hosting a tournament soon, correct? Jeremy Barr- (see schedule below)
- VII. Associate Principal's Report
 - a. Elaine Klincik – Teachers are doing their Fast Bridge testing. One Friday each month our teachers are meeting with the resource teachers, paras and resource groups with classrooms and going over what we need to do to keep kids growing/learning and getting ready for the state assessments.
- VIII. Principal's Report
 - a. January & February calendars attached
Jeremy Barr – January is a sprint for school. We will be busy, spelling bee, Catholic School Week, religion bee, grandparents mass. I will get all the letters of intent back by the end of January. I've gotten many of them back and it's been positive which is good for continuity. We are looking at a price increase for pre-k. We've not raised our prices in the last couple of years. Even with the increase we will be competitive with the schools around us. Fr. Dan Lorimer – We adjusted the price because we were losing money in pre-k. Jeremy Barr – We'll see in February what the enrollment looks like.
 - b. Good end to the semester
- IX. Pastor's Report
Fr. Dan Lorimer – We did the Epiphany blessings with the school last week. January 19 is our teacher's in-service and retreat. We're also hosting boys' basketball that night. The new parents' meeting for kindergarten will be the last week of January.
- X. PTO Report
Jeremy Barr – Meeting will be on 1/13.
- XI. Old Business

- a. Absence policy discussion/approval

Jeremy Barr – The policy that we discussed in December for Absence Make-up work Policy. The new part is in the Absences part of the policy. Lyndsey Sander – Does that mean that the work that can't be made up will be 0 or half percentage? Fr. Dan Lorimer – If they come in during their lunch to try to make up some of the work? I'm not sure how much that would work. Elaine Klincik – For the amount of work, it may take a lot of lunches. I think it may fall back to the teacher's discretion. We don't tend to tell a teacher what their late work policy is. I think it's when you miss this number of days, it's more than an assignment. Joshua Maze – Should that be included in the syllabus for each year? Jeremy Barr – For middle school they should already have that in their syllabi. Fr. Dan Lorimer – For the learning center, do we have any recommendations for where they should go? Jeremy Barr – There are a couple of places here locally that they could attend The Learning Center. There used to be a Mathnasium, but they went out of business. Elaine Klincik – We may need to find a better word than “unexcused”. Fr. Dan Lorimer – In the truancy, we could change it to “unplanned unexcused” absences.
- b. School Council workgroups –

Jeremy Barr – This is version 2 of the stewardship tracker. We tried to game-ify it and make it more appealing to the kids. They could color in the sheet based on color, coloring in the square that they complete to reach the goal. On the back is a similar version that could be used for older students. Jared Reichenberger – If kids do 3 reds and only two greens, can they skip steps? Jeremy Barr – No, they could color in each, so maybe we adjust the squares. Kara Hallacy – I like how many options there are for them to find something to do. Joshua Maze – I think how do you engage them differently? Elaine Klincik – We have done things at school with student like cards for the retirement communities, and for veterans, so there're doing that school volunteerism, we just want to make sure the teachers are maybe emailing the parents to have the students mark it off at home.
